

Nantucket named one of the best places to travel to this September by Conde Nast

Updated Jul 29, 2021; Posted Jul 29, 2021

By Heather Morrison | hmorrison@masslive.com

Vacations aren't just for the summer, especially if you're traveling to Massachusetts.

"September is the unsung hero of travel months," Conde Nast wrote. "It's the perfect time to pay a visit to locations that are usually swarming with tourists and enjoy some serious natural beauty, luxury hotels, outdoor adventures, and more than a few glasses of wine."

New England is known for its beautiful fall colors but Conde Nast suggests visiting Nantucket in early fall too.

It listed eight best places to travel in September, which included Bali, Switzerland and Nantucket.

"Nantucket isn't just for summering," the magazine wrote. "A fall trip to the island will be relatively quiet and crowd-free, but you can still enjoy the same outdoor activities as during high season. Spend your days sailing, golfing, biking, and walking to nearby lighthouses, or enjoy the lack of lines at Cisco Brewers and The Proprietors."

Another United States location included Jackson Hole, Wyoming.

Massachusetts also has five new hotels that are among the best in the world, according to Travel & Leisure.

This includes Miraval Berkshires Resort & Spa in Lenox, an all-inclusive stay that feels like a summer camp, Travel & Leisure said.

“Booze is generously available, and while baby-kale-quinoa bowls are offered at the smoothie bar, so is a sizable array of fresh-baked pastries,” the website states. “Treatments in the 28-room Life in Balance spa—such as the Kombucha Facial, which uses a tuning fork to release jaw tension—are similarly imaginative.”

See below for the full version of what Conde Nast wrote about Nantucket.

Nantucket isn't just for summering. A fall trip to the island will be relatively quiet and crowd-free, but you can still enjoy the same outdoor activities as during high season. Spend your days sailing, golfing, biking, and walking to nearby lighthouses, or enjoy the lack of lines at Cisco Brewers and The Proprietors. Don't miss the 10th annual Nantucket Project (September 23-26), an “ideas conference” where celebrities and innovators give live talks and music performances, as well as screen original films. This year's line-up of keynote speakers has yet to be announced, but past headliners include Jennifer Garner, Paul Giamatti, Steve Wozniak, and Ndaba Mandela. The event will be held at the White Elephant hotel, which happens to be one of the most beloved properties in Nantucket. The waterfront resort features spacious suites with harbor views, an outdoor heated pool, and a world-class spa, plus some of the best seafood on the island.